

Run up the Flagpole

Running something up the flagpole means to get feedback or approval from team members.

Circle Back

When someone says they will circle back to you on this, it simply means they'll discuss it with you later.

Skin in the Game

Skin in the game means having an interest in the outcome of an event or a project.

Ducks in a Row

This means getting organized or making all of the necessary preparations for a task or project, say a presentation or seminar.

Push the Envelope

When you ask someone to push the envelope, it means that you are asking the person to give their best. It simply suggests getting the most out of someone.
